Plant Tricks

Plants have no hands, feet, or brains. And no place to hide. But plants can be sly. They play tricks to stay OK.

The stone plant looks like a rock. Its leaves are not green. They are gray with cracks and match the ground. Bugs do not munch on rocks or stone plants!

Some plants use a sweet treat to trap ants and flies. When the bugs land on the “hood” of this plant, they slip and slide down a tube. Then the plant eats them up whole.

This spring, Gramps and I went on a trip to the Swiss Alps to see his old home. You take a train to get to the trail. You hike up a path to thick woods. You pass rocks, crags, and caves. Huff puff! It is a hike! But then at last you reach a house by a lake.

I had to ask. “What do you think of your old home, Gramps?”

Gramps did not try to hide his smile. He gave me a wink. “Such a long time has sped by, but it feels just the same.”

Peaks in the Alps reach the sky!
